Of all the hand of the rich Mississippi Valley, sold by the Government, it has realized but $3 1-3 per cent profit, after deducting cost of survey, expenses of Land Offices &c. This makes in itsulf but a poor show, so the as realizing any large amount of money by the sale of the lends, which accordingly would prove but a poor enourie on which to depend for revonue, on which to pay the principal or interest of a large amount of borrowed money.

There is considerable reaction on the subject of the spirit duty, and taxing the spirits a land. There are a number of distillars here from the West, who alloge that the amendment of Wood will brake up their basiness. They claim that they have not speculated, but that they have large stocks on land which the bad condition of the railroads (being clocked up with mow) has prevented them from throwing on the market. The Feorie distillers alone manufacture 10,000 bushels of grain per day into which, and cartie. One distillers alone manufacture 10,000 bushels of grain per day into which, and they do not want it retroective. Feorie distillers about 40,000 gainons of whicky per day, now the flow gainons of whicky per day, now the government loses more than it gains by taxing the stocks on hand, which it is obtained would only yield as, 60,000. They also claim that it would this a thousand additional officers to collect his tax, and that the odium it would cause would greatly damage the Government, as they say that the collectors would be compelled to visit every allow and small dealers in the country and small dealers in the country and small dealers in the country and small dealers.
